The newest subscription service isn't to stream TV shows or movies. It's for Taco Bell's tacos. Customers with the Taco Lover's Pass can order one crunchy taco, soft taco, spicy potato soft taco or Doritos Locos taco per day for 30 days straight on the chain's app. The cost of the pass ranges from $5 to $10 a month, depending on the location. The Yum Brands chain is testing the program across 17 locations in Tucson, Arizona from Sept. 9 to Nov. 24. Other restaurant chains have also launched similar subscription programs, with mixed success. Restaurant Brand International's Burger King launched a coffee subscription for $5 a month in 2019 to help promote its breakfast menu but discontinued it several months later. Panera Bread, which is privately owned, launched its own version in 2020 that offered unlimited coffee and tea for $8.99 a month and the first three months free. Less than a year later, the program had nearly half a million paying subscribers. Like Burger King and Panera, Taco Bell is likely hoping to drive regular visits to its restaurants from customers, building habits during the 30-day period. Since one taco isn't filling enough for most consumers, they might add more to their orders, too. The pass could encourage more consumers to download and use Taco Bell's app as well. The chain launched a loyalty program through its app more than a year ago. Executives on Yum's latest earnings call said that Taco Bell loyalty members spend 35% more on their visits compared with their spending habits before joining the program. Shares of Yum, which also owns KFC and Pizza Hut, have risen 18% this year, bringing its market value to $37.9 billion. Taco Bell SuomiVielä ehdit ottaa osaa Bring the Heat- biisikisaan! Taco Bell etsii uutta Rap/R' n' B- kykyä, joka ... Taco Bell caused quite a stir among its fans in 2020. Many people were unhappy with the fast-food chain paring down its menu, including getting rid of favorites like the Seven-Layer Burrito, Nachos Supreme and the Mexican Pizza. At the time, the company acknowledged the need to streamline its menu in light of the COVID-19 pandemic. However, Taco Bell also promised the simplified menu would "leave room for new fan favorites, continued progress in categories such as plant-based diets and even opportunities for the return of some classics on a limited-time basis," the chain said in a statement. It looks like 2021 is starting out with Taco Bell working to live up to some of those promises with the introduction of some new items and the return of some old favorites. The new menu items started dropping into Taco Bell locations before the new year. Nacho Fries made a triumphant return starting on Christmas Eve, and the Midnight Berry Freeze, Taco Bell's newest frozen beverage, launched into orbit soon afterward. Taco Bell But those treats aren't the only new additions to the chain's menu. With an emphasis on value and nostalgia, the company has three additional offerings it hopes will satisfy customer cravings and save them a little bit of money, too. Bacon Club Chalupa This fan-favorite originally debuted in 2008 and offers chalupa fans a fun twist by combining it with a club sandwich. The Bacon Club Chalupa starts with a fried Chalupa shell stuffed with marinated all-white-meat grilled chicken, bacon, avocado ranch sauce, a three-cheese blend, lettuce and tomatoes. You can get it a la carte for $3.49 or in a combo for $5.99, which comes with two Crunchy Tacos and a large drink. Taco Bell Loaded Nacho Taco What's better than a taco? How about a soft taco loaded up with nacho strips and drizzled with nacho cheese along with seasoned beef and lettuce? The Loaded Nacho Taco has everything you need for a great late-night snack. And, at just $1 each, you can load up on these without going broke.
